

All clients who have read the "User Agreement" and participated in the mailing of e-mails are subject to the policy of the management company.

The Broker has the right to send notifications to the Client's e-mail about upcoming webinars, trainings, additional materials in the form of video recordings and educational literature, as well as reminders about the Company's regular promotional and bonus offers. In addition, service mailing is carried out in the case of a new account, verification of a deposit account, password recovery and other technical actions. The company conducts business correspondence only from the official mail. All letters sent from the specified domain contain original templates, logos and designs, which are the undivided property of the Company and are prohibited from being used by unauthorized persons for their own purposes without the written permission of the financial agent. After agreeing to receive mailings from the Company, the principal undertakes not to send complaints to the email service used and not to mark incoming mail as spam. In a situation where the principal decides to stop receiving mailings, it is necessary to write a short text in response to any letter from the organization, which will contain the word "DELETE". After the action is completed, the sending of correspondence will be completely stopped, and the recipient will be permanently excluded from the subscriber base. If the principal does not comply with the E-mail Policy, the broker will terminate any partnership, after which the response will be expressed in automatic or text complaints. Further, contact information, proof of its subsequent violation and confirmation of the previously left consent to the organization's policy will be sent to the mail service that provides its direct services, in order to avoid possible misunderstandings. In case of non-compliance with the E-mail Policy, the Management Company has the right to transfer the client's data to third parties and has all the authority to act in this way.
